GENERAL INFORMATION

EAGE

The European Association of Geoscientists and Engineers (EAGE) is a global professional, non-profit association for geoscientists and engineers with 19,000 members worldwide. The objective is to collect and distribute technical knowledge. EAGE organizes events and publishes a monthly magazine for its members and 5 scientific journals. All members of EAGE are professionally involved in (or studying) geophysics, petroleum exploration, geology, reservoir engineering, mining and mineral exploration, civil engineering, tunneling and environmental matters. EAGE’s head office is located in the Netherlands with regional offices in Moscow, Dubai, Kuala Lumpur and Bogota.
ABOUT THE EVENT

More than 60% of the world’s oil and 40% of the world’s gas reserves are held in carbonate reservoirs. They are naturally unique geologically and exhibit complex porosity system and permeability characteristics, which drastically influence whole life-cycle of carbonate field development and productions. Carbonate field operators find difficulties to deal with the complexity of Carbonate reservoirs, including fractured limestone, reef-shoal, karstification, and dolomite, are very difficult to explore and exploit. As such, new tools, techniques, method and interpretation are required to address specific challenges to exploit these reservoirs optimally. In fact, in recent years, there are lot of advancement in technologies across the domains making it possible to maximise the hydrocarbon potential in carbonate assets.

The symposium will cover the main areas of carbonate oil and gas reservoir exploration and development: from reservoir characterization and management to stimulation and drilling challenges to reservoir management and surveillance. Special focus will be made on case studies, where new ideas and technologies are required to deliver critical improvements in productivity, efficiency, effective cost and prudent resource management.
