1 About the Event

The EAGE/DGG workshop, will take place in Leoben (Austria) on Friday 16 February 2018. We expect to host approximately 60 delegates. The EAGE/DGG workshop will focus on the topic of Mining and Tunneling Geophysics.

About the workshop

In this workshop we want to focus on technical problems related to the construction and operation of mines and tunnels, including mine heap investigations. One of the key factors in mining and tunneling is the mechanical properties of the rock mass. Stress changes due to excavation affect those properties and cause rock fracturing and increased safety, technical and economic risks. Geophysical exploration and monitoring technologies may help with the recognition of potential risks.

We invite speakers that deal with all aspects of the characterization and the monitoring of rock mass properties in mines and tunnels, including active and passive seismic methods to look ahead of the tunnel face, to monitor stress changes, to characterize rock quality, or to characterize and monitor mine heaps.

Aim of the workshop

The aim of the workshop is to bring together contributions from academics, researchers, and industry experts to showcase and advance the application potential of geophysical technologies in mining and tunneling.

We want to foster discussions between geophysicists and mining and subsurface engineers to promote attention to the requirements of the industry and sensitivity to the prerequisites of novel geophysical approaches.
